

Nominations open for 4th annual Chief Financial Officer of the Year Awards

Nominations are now open for Memphis Business Journal's 4th annual CFO of the Year Awards, presented by Vaco.

The awards program is designed to honor the top financial officers in the area. Each nominee must be a chief financial officer or hold an equivalent position at a local company or organization headquartered in Memphis or the Mid-South area.

Award nominations will be accepted in the following categories:

- Private Company (less than $100 million in annual revenue)
- Private Company (more than $100 million in annual revenue)
- Public Company (any size)
- Nonprofit Organization (less than $30 million in annual revenue)
- Nonprofit Organization (more than $30 million in annual revenue)
- Lifetime Achievement Award

Last year's winners included:

- Dwight Bassett, chief financial officer of Builders Transportation Co. LLC, private company with less than $100 million in annual revenue.
- Jackie A. Thomas, chief financial officer of Power & Telephone Supply Co., private company with more than $100 million in revenue.
- Beth Porter, director of finance for St. George's Independent School, nonprofit organization with less than $30 million in annual revenue.
- Rick Wagers, senior vice president and chief financial officer at the Regional Medical Center at Memphis, nonprofit organization with more than $30 million in annual revenue.

- Albert M. Campbell III, executive vice president and chief financial officer of MAA, public company.

The nomination deadline is July 26. Finalists will be featured in a special publication in the Oct. 11 issue of Memphis Business Journal.

The CFO of the Year Awards will be presented at a breakfast event at Holiday Inn University of Memphis on Oct. 17.

Vaco is the presenting sponsor of the CFO Awards. Gold sponsors for the program are Butler, Snow, O'Mara, Stevens & Cannada PLLC, Bank of America Merrill Lynch and CBIZ MHM LLC. Champion Awards is a contributing sponsor.

To nominate a CFO for the award, complete an online nomination form by July 26 by going to memphisbusinessjournal.com and clicking on the CFO of the Year icon at the bottom of the page. Once you have submitted your nominee's name, you will receive a questionnaire form via e-mail to complete. You will be asked to provide additional details about why your nominee deserves to be honored in the CFO Awards.

For more information, contact Betsy McKay at (901) 259-1776 or bmckay@bizjournals.com.

